

SARAH J. MCHALE

Sarah McHale is an Associate at Dain Torpy, where she specializes in commercial real estate and land use litigation, alongside various leasing and transactional matters. A proud graduate of Suffolk University Law School, Sarah distinguished herself as the Chief Competitions Editor for the Transnational Law Review and served as Secretary of the Real Estate Law Society. Additionally, she was an active member of both the Tax Law Association and the Women's Bar Association.

Prior to attending law school and joining Dain Torpy, Sarah spent three years working for the Connecticut State Senate in Hartford, CT. At the same time, she also managed several state and local campaigns, striving to elect committed and effective leaders up and down the ballot. In her free time, Sarah enjoys spending time with family and friends, skiing, reading, and riding her Peloton bike.
